

I Know My Redeemer Lives

A theology of hope contrasted with a theology of despair

1. If we stick with just the facts, our conclusions will always be the same. (Yes/No)
2. Bildad has a theology of _____ (a strict reap what you sow), so he interprets that Job's suffering is a result of his _____.
3. What are some consequences of having a theology like Bildad? (circle all that apply)
  - i. A feeling of pride and entitlement.
  - ii. Judgmental or harsh towards others.
  - iii. No room for mercy or grace.
  - iv. Thanklessness and ingratitude.
  - v. Hopelessness
4. Job has a theology of _____.
5. There was nothing Job did to bring about this suffering in his life. (Yes/No)
6. There is nothing Job can do to bring an end to his suffering. (Yes/No)
7. Job's theology seems to imply that God is _____ and Job has no hope.
8. In reality, Job's hope is not in himself but only in _____. And this is a great hope!
9. A redeemer is someone who acts on your behalf to rescue you. (Yes/No)
10. Who is Job's redeemer? _____
11. Even if Job dies without seeing God's deliverance, he has a hope in resurrection. (Yes/No)
12. Our hope is in the Redeemer, the Lord _____.
13. In a theology of sovereignty, our actions are meaningless. (Yes/No)
14. Where is your hope? _____
